Third Party Risk Management

About:

This course is aimed at risk practitioners and business managers who are responsible for building and managing third party risk management (TPRM) frameworks and processes in their organization.

This course details the key processes you will need to develop and how to adapt them to your organization. It also acknowledges that TPRM is not as simple as introducing a set of processes. We explore governance and roles and responsibilities, and how TPRM should be integrated into broader risk management capabilities of the organization. We cover how you can monitor and measure third party risks as well as performance of your TPRM program.

You will develop the skills and tools needed to implement a comprehensive and effective TPRM framework.
